

Cheap air travel 'boosts viruses'

BUDGET airlines help make diseases like swine flu more deadly, a study suggested yesterday.

Edinburgh Uni experts say viruses are likely to become more harmful because of the boom in international travel — fuelled by firms like Ryanair and easyJet.

Dr Andy Gardner said: "Our findings have important implications."